

Hanover Township Historical Society

The Hanover Township Historical Society was formed in 1988 to serve the township and five small villages within to seek and preserve local history. The museum is a small facility, located in an early schoolhouse in the village of Hanoverton. It provides an extensive genealogy research section with such things as family histories, early maps, information and memorabilia of early home life in the area. In addition, The Hanover Township Historical Society is responsible for the display and storage of many of the artifacts and written information from the Sandy and Beaver Canal, which came through the township in the early 1800's.
